Commission Studies survey

At a regular public meeting Monday afternoon, the City Government Study Commission took a preliminary look at the responses to a survey and discussed a public hearing set for 7 p.m. this Monday at City Hall.

Secretary Chris Holzer said that the meeting will both allow the commission to hear the public's comments about the current form of city government in Libby and give the study commission the opportunity to explain its purpose to the public.

The commission received back 43 of the 300 surveys on city government it sent out. Commission members noted that many of the respondents indicated that they would attend the May 13 public hearing.

About two-thirds of the surveys were favorable toward the city government, estimated commission member Dan Larson.

Holzer was instructed to prepare a detailed summary of the survey responses.
